

I'm not sure that our government needs additional surveillance capabilities above those currently available to them, especially considering the outrageous Patriot Act amendment allowing our intelligence services to surveil citizens without notification, judicial permission, or even congressional oversight. We should make some attempt to preserve what remains of our Constitution and not trust that those empowered by these unbounded laws will "do the right thing".